

The fat wires leading off the pin holes are for durability as some copper stays under the coverlay and is more heat resistant for soldering.

